

Kicking at Gilded Age

ON FEBRUARY 15, 2010 AT 11:48 AM

Obsession of the Day

I can't get enough of those lace-up Chippewa ropers from Gilded Age the other day. Peeking out from underneath custom leather boot covers and partially unlaced, they were perfectly in line with that whole roughed-up lux thing Gilded Age does so well. The Western-style workboots have been a top-seller for the 109-year-old Chippewa brand for decades, and it brought some joy to this Texan's heart seeing them stomp down the runway. If you've got the swagger to pull them off, don't worry about waiting until the fall to get your hands on a pair.

— Kat Thomsen

photo: Andrew Thomas